

North Carolina School Social Workers' Association

PRESENTS

Annual Conference Sponsorships and Exhibit Opportunities

NCSSWA has become the catalyst for providing the professional development of school social workers in North Carolina. We gather once a year to provide our membership with a three-day conference on various topics to enhance their skills in the practice of school social work. School social workers bring unique knowledge and skills to the school system and the student services team. School social workers provide services that enhance and promote the educational, emotional, and social needs of students and families in order for them to make use of the resources available to them to achieve their full potential within their home, school, and community. Our membership is made up of school social workers, drop-out prevention counselors, administrators, and professors from major universities.
